

CORTINA LEATHER

Cortina Leather is a beautiful vegetable tanned calfskin from one of Europe's oldest and finest tanneries. Tanned with an environmentally friendly process, the leather yielded is softly textured and natural to the touch. Subtle hand-antiquing highlights the leather, and natural growth marks add to its character.

CORTINA LEATHER

TRAFALGAR'S SIGNATURE CORTINA LEATHER PRODUCTS

Trafalgar's famous Cortina Leather has a long and rich history. Trafalgar cares about the quality and preparation of this type of leather. There are many unique properties your customer will want to know about.

1) QUALITY:

Quality is the cornerstone of Cortina Leather. Cortina leather comes from the shoulder area of the hide, this is the one place the contrasting highs and lows of the fat wrinkles show the most depth and richness of color. Trafalgar's Cortina Leather derives from free-roaming cows of the Belgium countryside where barbwire is never used. This eliminates the inevitable scarring one sees on the hides of other leathers. Paired with Trafalgar's strict "Quality Control System and Standards" your Trafalgar customers are guaranteed the best product on the market.

2) ECO-FRIENDLY:

All Trafalgar leather is vegetable tanned. This not only means a more durable, longer lasting finish; but it also means this luxury collection is one of the first leather accessories lines to be entirely biodegradable and eco-friendly. Usually, leather is tanned with man-made chemicals that, although doing the job faster, are hazardous to our environment.

3) CHARACTER:

The natural quality of the Cortina leather allows Trafalgar to use a unique tanning process. Trafalgar Cortina Leather is able to be drum-dyed and aniline finished. Both of these steps are often overlooked in the leather accessories business because of expense and time, but Trafalgar feels these steps are necessary to ensure the best quality. Unlike poorly stained leather, where only the top layer of the leather will wear with age, because of the depth of the color and stain penetration, all of Trafalgar's Cortina Leather products will maintain the rich highlighting of natural grain, for a lifetime.
